Doi Suthep Temple & Hmong Hill Tribe Village

📍 A MUST SEE AND MOST POPULAR LANDMARK
WHEN VISITING IN CHIANG MAI. 📍

Doi Suthep Temple is a place of worship dated back to 1383 when the first pagoda was built. It is an important pilgrimage spot for devotion and a sacred site to Thai and foreigners where visitors can climb up 309 steps staircase to reach the stupa on the hilltop and you can also find the superb scenery from the temple's terrace.

Besides a variety of religious outreach programs can be enjoyed, the trip includes a visit to the Hmong Hill Tribe Village (one of the ethnic groups with their colorful traditional costumes) called "Hmong Doi Pui" located at the boundaries where travelers can discover their way of life, culture and history throughout the village as well as through their historical evidence at the museum.

The Rhythm of Chiang Mai

“GET AROUND BY TRADITIONAL TRANSPORT
AND LEARN MORE ABOUT LOCALS
WITH AUTHENTIC EXPERIENCE.”

Stepping back to the past with a visit to “Wat Ket Karam”, one of the old temples was built in 1482, located along Ping River which was an important commercial area in those days. The trip will take you to explore the temple and its museum to understand the simplicity of northern Thai culture and Buddhism through antiques and old photos.

Then, ambling along the riverside heritage path to absorb the sense of the past from the building along the riverside which reflected combinations between Lanna and Chinese with Western architecture. Then, walk across the footbridge to Warorot Market, the largest fresh market in the city, all traditional and local products can be found. You will walk around the market including seeing the local vibe and getting an authentic feeling and learning the culture of the locals.

Continue the trip by traditional trishaw called Samlor, a symbol of Chiang Mai's way of life. Pedal at low speed along with the open views to roam along Thapae Road through the old city, walls, and moat to the sense of sights and sounds of Chiang Mai city. Finally, you will cap off an awesome day with a local lunch before heading back to the hotel with full of memories.
